
Fullstack Developer | PHP | Laravel | React | Amsterdam

WHAT DO THEY DO?

Our client, founded in 2016, is a leading logistics and parcel delivery platform with a strong presence across Europe. They have established strategic partnerships with major courier services, connecting them to an extensive network of large e-commerce stores. Additionally, they collaborate with renowned marketplaces such as Marktplaats, providing shipping label services and software integration. The company is dedicated to innovation and technology to make package delivery more efficient and user-friendly. Their focus is now more on enterprise environments to help companies such as Nike with the integration and connection with all the different suppliers. With the software of our client all these problems are solved. So a real tech driven company

WHAT WILL YOU BE DOING?

As a fullstack developer with a Back-end focus, you will play a crucial role in developing their enterprise environment. Your focus will be on improving the user experience and meeting the demands of large e-commerce stores. Collaborating with a diverse team, you will contribute to the implementation of projects, with a special emphasis on return management. Working closely with internal stakeholders, including the procurement team, you will optimize order processing and integrate data into the platform's data warehouse. You will have end-to-end responsibility for designing, building, implementing, and testing solutions.
