HAYSTACK PEOPLE

Senior Product Manager

ScaleUp | Vast | 100k

COMPANY'S PROFILE

This company is building a digital healthcare platform that gives consumers easy access to medical treatments, guidance and personalised health programmes. By combining medical expertise, technology and data, they're making healthcare smarter, more personal and more accessible.

The organisation is growing fast and scaling its product and tech. Teams work in squads, with short lines to the CTO, backend engineers, product, UX, data, medical and customer care. The culture is fast, practical and direct. Plenty of room to make your own decisions.

THE ROLE

As Product Manager, you own the vision and roadmap for the internal patient platform. There are two product managers at this company: one focused on the customer-facing side — the app, the website, and the patient experience. You're the other one. Your world is the backend: the internal systems that connect medical teams, pharmacy, logistics, finance and operations, making sure everything works together smoothly and at scale.

You work closely with engineering, use data to spot where things slow down, and make sure everything built is secure and compliant. You report directly to the CTO and have real impact on how tens of thousands of people experience their care.

WHAT WE'RE LOOKING FOR

- Data-driven and pragmatic, comfortable making trade-offs in a fast-moving scale-up
- Able to navigate compliance constraints without losing momentum
- Strong stakeholder management and able to influence without formal authority
- Fluent in English
